The Open Government Partnership

The Open Government Partnership is a global initiative that aims to secure commitments from governments to promote transparency, empower citizens, fight corruption, and harness new technologies to strengthen governance.

The OGP has grown to 69 participating countries. To join OGP, countries must commit to uphold the principles of open and transparent government by endorsing the Open Government Declaration. All participating countries, which include both the UK and Ireland, are required to co-create a National Action Plan with civil society.

The Northern Ireland Open Government Network

Aligned with the UK Open Government Civil Society Network, the Northern Ireland Open Government Network is an alliance of individual citizens and representatives of voluntary/community organisations with the following vision:

To contribute to delivering more open, transparent and accountable government that empowers citizens to shape decisions that impact on their lives

The Network is funded by the Building Change Trust and Northern Ireland Environment Link provides the secretariat to the Network. The NI Network, which has nearly 200 individual members, represents a diverse coalition of individual citizens and representatives of voluntary and community sector organisations.

The UK Open Government National Action Plan and the Sub-National Dimension

To date, the OGP has been focussed on the national level with the UK and Ireland for example, developing National Open Government Action Plans. However, the OGP is seeking to engage sub-national governments in the initiative. The Department of Finance and Personnel (DFP) has been requested by the Cabinet Office to work in collaboration with civic society to propose NI specific commitments for the Third UK Open Government Action Plan. The Third Action Plan is being developed around six overarching open government themes: civic participation; public accountability, anti-corruption; open data; technology & innovation; access to information.

The NI Network has been involved in a collaborative process with officials from the Department of Finance and Personnel to develop Northern Ireland specific commitments. DFP has led the process, with NI OGN being the key partner from civic society. The process has involved gauging the views of citizens via the OGN online forum and participating in collaborative workshops, meetings and a task and finish group between civic society and public sector representatives. A set of commitments (see Appendix 1), as forged through this process of co-design has hopefully been passed to senior DFP officials and the Minister's Office for review. A Paper will hopefully be passed to the Executive for consideration.

Other proposed commitments fall within the remit of the Northern Ireland Assembly and the Network has engaged the Assembly Speaker and the Director of Parliamentary Services to shape these commitments. The NI Assembly is set to consider formal adoption of The Declaration of Parliamentary Openness, an international declaration which sets out 44 principles for advancing parliamentary openness.

The Northern Ireland Assembly has a good record on Parliamentary openness and many of the 44 principles are already enshrined in the workings of the Assembly. However, we hope the Declaration, with an associated action plan, can be formally adopted as a demonstrative commitment to the OGP initiative.

The Network's collaboration with DFP over the past six months has shown what can be achieved when government and citizens forge a positive working relationship and work hand in hand around policy development. We hope this is the beginning of an enduring collaboration, whereby a culture of co-creation/co-design can become further engrained in governance practice. The joint work undertaken to date now needs to be matched by a political appetite to support the inclusion of strong open government commitments in both the UK Action Plan and the NI Programme for Government.

The OGP Sub-national Pilot Programme

The Open Government Partnership (OGP) is looking for sub-national governments and energetic partners in civil society to take part in an exciting new pilot program designed to advance open government reform. Up to 10 subnational governments that are pioneers in open government will be invited to take part.

The Pilot is intended to: create opportunities (locally and internationally) to share ideas and experience, test new methods of citizen engagement and improve the impact of the Partnership. It is primarily about exploring ways to make governments more transparent, responsive and effective; delivering greater civic participation in public affairs; and achieving greater prosperity, well-being and human dignity in our own country and in an increasingly interconnected world.

The Pilot Programme provides an exciting opportunity for us to pioneer deliberative civic engagement and democratic innovation in a way that has real value for policy makers as well as citizens. We are currently seeking pilot ideas from our network, but from our discussions to date, we envisage six potential components of the OGP sub-national pilot for NI:

1. An open contracting pilot run in conjunction with DFP, the Central Procurement Directorate, NI OGN and the Open Contracting Partnership. Discussions are ongoing between DFP/CPD and the Open Contracting Partnership as part of the proposed NI commitments (see appendix 1) for the UK Open Government Action Plan. The Open Contracting Partnership can provide guidance and resources around implementation of the open contracting standard and visualisation tool.
2. Adoption of the Declaration of Parliamentary Openness and development of an associated action plan. The Assembly Speaker is considering adoption of the Declaration and the proposal is currently being considered by the Assembly Commission.
3. Creating a citizens' budget. NI OGN will work with DFP officials to explore options for creating a citizens' budget. This will involve translating complex government budgetary documentation into a simple, concise and short overview that can easily be understood by citizens.
4. Pilot an innovative mechanism of deliberative civic engagement. NI OGN to work with a NI Assembly Committee (to be confirmed) to pilot a new and innovative mechanism of deliberative civic engagement for community outreach.
5. Participatory budgeting (PB) pilot. NI OGN to seek commitment from a local council to undertake a PB pilot. The PB process, which has been widely implemented at local government level in Scotland, is being explored at an NIOGN event in March. Following the event, we hope to explore options and secure a council partner to undertake a ‘real’ PB pilot.

6. Participate in a DFP innovation Lab. NI OGN has discussed with DFP officials the possibility of running an Innovation Lab and we are currently considering appropriate topics. As a component of the OGP sub-national pilot, this lab can be used as a global exemplar of a deliberative mechanism demonstrating the value of civic society and government working hand-in-hand to develop solutions for a seemingly intractable societal problem.

Conclusion

Northern Ireland is already pioneering open government practice at the sub-national level, but political support is now imperative. The Open Government agenda, which complements much of the rationale evident in the Fresh Start Agreement, presents an opportunity for NI to become a shining light at the forefront of this global initiative. In addition to raising Northern Ireland’s global credibility, the inclusion and implementation of strong Northern Ireland specific open government commitments in the UK Action Plan, will enhance the credibility of government and the political institutions at local level. The Network therefore hopes that the Executive will embrace the Open Government initiative by endorsing the open government commitments proposed and supporting the sub-national pilot. In particular, we hope the DFP Minister will continue to champion this important Initiative within the Executive and support Department officials in delivering a pilot around open contracting standards.

We would welcome the opportunity to meet with the Committee to discuss the issues raised in more detail.
